ENTIRE POLICE ORDERED TO HUNT GIRLS' ASSAILANTS

Men Told to Drop All Other Work and Get After Miscreants Who Have Been Making Children Their Victims.

Second Deputy Police Commissioner Bugher this afternoon issued a sweeping order directing every plain clothes man in every precinct of the Greater City to lay aside every other duty and go out to hunt the assailants of girls and young women. All policemen have been specially ordered to keep a sharp lookout for these offenders.

The order goes into effect immediately and most of the afternoon was taken up in transmitting it by telephone to every precinct in the city. Inspector McCafferty declared to-day that he feels positive that he has the murderer of eight-year-old Katie Tietschler, whose body was found on Thursday in the cellar of No. 203 First avenue, in custody. He made this announcement after he had grilled the four Espisito brothers, the young Italian fruit vendors who rented the cellar where the outrage was committed.

All four, Luigi, twenty; Tomaso, twenty-four; George, seventeen, and James, thirteen, were examined separately and then in the presence of one another. Important admissions were drawn from Luigi, after he had at first denied that he knew the slain little girl or had been in the cellar where she was maltreated at the time of her disappearance.
